Accounting has long been considered a reliable profession. But in-demand and lucrative aren’t adjectives typically used to describe the field—until now. Job growth and salaries are increasing, especially for those with a professional certification or master’s degree, such as a CPA.

140,300 new accounting and auditing jobs will be available by 2026, equating to a 10% job growth rate. (Source: U.S. News & World Report)

The median salary for an auditing director is $141,000, with a projected job growth rate of 11%. (Source: CNN)

An auditing director earns an ‘A’ rating in terms of personal satisfaction, making the position one of CNN’s Best Jobs in America.

CPAs are the highest-earning, most in-demand “Finance and Accounting Jobs to Watch in 2018,” according to recruiters. (Source: Payscale.com)

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)

Reputable source? Roger CPA Review

State of the Industry: Accounting

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)

State of the Industry: Accounting

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)

State of the Industry: Accounting

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)

State of the Industry: Accounting

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)

State of the Industry: Accounting

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)

State of the Industry: Accounting

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)

State of the Industry: Accounting

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)

State of the Industry: Accounting

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)

State of the Industry: Accounting

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)

State of the Industry: Accounting

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)

State of the Industry: Accounting

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)

State of the Industry: Accounting

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)

State of the Industry: Accounting

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)

State of the Industry: Accounting

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)

State of the Industry: Accounting

On average, CPAs earn more than their non-certified counterparts. 5% to 10% (Source: Roger CPA Review)